Ranking methodology

The America's Growth Leaders of 2026 ranking, compiled by TIME and Statista, evaluated U.S.-based, publicly traded companies across three key dimensions: Growth Performance, Financial Stability, and Stock Performance. Growth performance was based on five years of revenue expansion, considering both relative growth and consistency. Financial stability measured profitability and financial health using indicators such as the Piotroski F-Score, Altman Z-Score, and industry-specific KPIs. Stock performance assessed investment strength through metrics like annual growth rate, returns, market comparison, and volatility over the past five years.
